An Amphibian Outing

Did you know there are 22 species of Salamanders in the State of Indiana?

You seldom see one – they spend most of their lives in hiding, but at the first hint of spring they come out to celebrate Nature's awakening.

Members of the Hoosier Herpetological Society (HHS) will be at the park to share their knowledge about these elusive creatures and guide us on the quest to find them.

While we are out, we will keep our ears open for croaks, ribbits and peeps ...

Presentations by HHS members: live animals on display and Power Point program on the Amphibians of Indiana
